RHYME WORKSHEET

One for sorrow...
Sorrow makes me think (of)... When my nanny died in hospital Crying Rain People I lost Friends splitting up My granddad is dying Watching animals getting killed I feel there is a part of me missing The things I did wrong in the past	Where in your body do you feel sorrow? In my heart and my mind In my nose because it tingles and my eyes sting as well In my brain In my bones In that place in your heart where all things you cherish are kept
To change sorrow into happiness... I can cheer someone up and make them happy I make sure I don't do anything wrong I sleep I can help someone Stay with people so they're not lonely Think of my memories that make me laugh Think of how happy the people I lost would be watching over me Look on the bright side of life - if people have died, think they have gone to a better place

Two for joy...
Joy makes me think of... When I go to the fun fair Eating sweets Being cheerful My pets on adoptme.com My baby brother A huge beautiful paradise Happiness because on Saturday I'm going to the cinema Puppies and cute animals Clowns When I was a little girl A smile Yellow!!! Flowers Bouncy, lively people	Where in your body do you feel joy? In my heart and happy part of my brain Buzzing about in my head In my stomach (when I'm being fed) In my heart because it makes me feel energetic My hands because when I feel happy I clap my hands In my smile In my legs because when I feel happy I run
When I'm full of joy I... Play football in the garden with my brother Go to the park with my family Go and eat chocolate mousse and junk food Dance, sing, play, jump Hang out with my mates Do a BarBQ outside in a lovely sunny place Go on my cousin's trampoline Share and give things away Smile, laugh, hug Do handstands against the wall Help my mum to cook Go into Croydon
